Balochistan's energetic youth will change the course of action for the province SAPM Shaza Fatima Khawaja

Self-sustained economy is the future, the youth of the country need to play its role to counter the challenges Pakistan facing. Balochistan's youth has a huge responsibility in this regard keeping in view the challenges of the province, said Special Assistant to Prime Minister on Youth Affairs Shaza Fatima Khawaja in a meeting with youth delegation from Balochistan. The youth of our country should be aware of their global competition and their vision should be universal. Our youth should think global.

By export in the IT sector only, Pakistan can generate 3 billion dollars annually. Entrepreneurship, small businesses self-employment should be the focus of today's youth. "I would suggest you all to learn online, learn new languages, develop soft skills. Focus on startups and small businesses, this will bring more job opportunities in your community. This way you will be uplifting the community, and will bring awareness in your societies." Stated Miss Shaza Fatima Khawaja

Youth representatives from various universities of Balochistan appreciated the resumption of prime minister's youth laptop program. Most opined, laptops are the need of graduating students for them to be self-employed or taking part effectively in e commerce.

Youth appreciated one on one interaction with the SAPM. Questions about the poor infrastructure and several technical issues were raised. The dilemma of non-availability of enough public libraries for the youth of Balochistan was also highlighted.
